About this Conference

The National Adult Protective Services Association (NAPSA) reports that financial exploitation is an escalating form of abuse affecting older adults. It is widespread, expensive, and deadly. The US Department of Justice reports that older adults in our country lose more than 2.9 billion dollars annually from financial exploitation. While perpetrators are generally family members or other people that the victim trusts, shrewd scam artists also target these vulnerable populations. This conference will examine the financial capacity and subsequent risk of financial exploitation affecting individuals with diminished cognitive aptitude. Case studies, panel discussions, and workshop sessions will address warning signs and legal interventions providing attendees with conceptual tools and interventions to assist victims of financial exploitation.

Learning Objectives

This conference is designed to provide participants with an opportunity to:

A. Elevate public awareness of financial exploitation of vulnerable adults;

B. Acquire techniques for developing a toolkit to: 1) identify suspected financial abuse; 2) determine if cognition is diminished; and 3) assess financial capacity;

C. Learn how to identify the loss of financial capacity in both cognitively normal adults and those with diminished cognition;

D. Understand the legal interventions available when financial abuse and exploitation are suspected.
